FROM GRANT'S ARMY. The Unsuccessful Assaults-Description of the Enemy's Line—Our Loss during the past Ten Days 8,000 Killed and Wounded—Capture of 1,200 Rebel Prisoners. [Associated Press Correspondence.]

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. June 18-8 p.m.-The fighting yesterday was very severe along the greater part of the line, the most determined efforts being made to break the enemy's line at several points. But little ground was gained, however, except on the left, where the enemy were forced to fall back to an inner line on account of the advanced position gained by Ledlie's division of Burnside's corps on Friday afternoon.

The enemy's line is nearly in the form of a semi-circle, with the ends resting on the Appomattox river-Petersburg about the center. At some points of the line our guns are within a mile and a half of the city, and it can be destroyed at any time with ease. The heaviest fighting occurred on the right center, where each division of the 2d corps, at different hours, charged the works in front, but without success, the enemy being behind breastworks of the strongest character, with troops massed behind, and our men having to cross open fields of 200 to 400 yards in extent, exposed to a cross fire from batteries planted so as to sweep the entire space. The last attack was made at 5 p. m. by the 3d division, under Gen. Mott, and their loss was probably heavier than in either of the others. Gen. Price was wounded while gallantly leading his brigade in the charge. Gen. Martindale, on the right, attacked the enemy and succeeded in taking a few prisoners. His loss is reported at about 500. The 5th corps did not lose heavily in their advance in the morning, but lost considerable in the afternoon in their attack on the left. Our loss, during the past ten days, will reach at least 8,000 in killed and wounded. The loss of the enemy at some points was greater than ours, but being generally behind their entrenchments were not so much exposed, and of course suffered less on the whole. All the prisoners taken so far (some 1,200, of whom about 200 came in yesterday,) represent themselves as being in Beauregard's army

The following changes have been made Gen. Ingalis has been designated as chief quartermaster of the combined armies in this vicinity, to be stationed at City Point, with Gen. Grant. Lieut. Col. Batchelder, chief quartermaster 2d army corps, has been temporarily assigned as chief quartermaster at Gen. Meade's head-

BALTIMORE, June 20 .- A letter received from Bermuda Hundred, dated June 18, says: " In all, 21 pieces of artillery have been captured from the enemy in our assaults upon the works at Petersburg, besides a large number of prisoners.

"When the enemy withdrew his forces in front of Gen. Butler, to reinforce Petersburg, Butler immediately sent out a force, under Gens. Terry and Turner, which succeeded in destroying an important bridge and 4 miles of railroad track, near Waltham Junction. Early's (late Longstreet's) Corps crossed the James river near Drewry's Bluff, in strong force, and was seen coming down the Petersburg turn-pike as General Butler's forces entered their works. A letter dated last evening says the steamer

Amanda Winants, whilst passing Wilcex's whart, was fired into from the north side of the James river by a rebel battery. Ten shots were fired at her, one of which passed through her hull, near the water. No one was in-

CHAMBERSBURG, June 20 .- A report was started from Newark, New Jersey, based on what was stated to be a reliable source, that the hundred days' men at Trenton were under marching orders for Harrisburg, a small force of rebels having entered the Cumberland Valley. This rumor has been brought to the notice of General Couch, who says he knows nothing of such troops being thus ordered, as the Cumberland Valley was never more quiet than it is to-day.

MEETING OF THE PRACE DEMOCRACY .- Vallandigham and Fremont both Indorsed-Great Expectations of the Peace Democracy from the Fremont Nomination .- Another meeting of the Peace Democrats of this District was held last night, to the number of seventy-five or one hundred, at the rooms over Parker's Hall, and was called to order by the Chairman, ex-Commissioner Charles Mason.

A letter was read from Prof. S. F. B. Morse, inclosing $2, and asking to be constituted a member of the association. The reading of the letter occasioned much applause, and Mr. Thos. B. Florence made a speech highly laudatory of Mr. Morse's patriotism and Peace Democratic Mesers. Samuel T. Drury and C. Gautter

On motion of Mr. Florence, it was resolved that meetings be held every night for the next two weeks, and that members of Congress and others be invited to address such persons as may assemble in the hall. Mr. Florence also moved the appointment of a committee to get up a proper celebration of the coming Fourth of July; and the motion was carried. In pursuance of Mr. Florence's resolution. a committee, consisting of Messrs. Florence, Wise, Thornley, Purdy and Drury, was appointed to make all arrangements for the celebration. At this moment a man dressed in the unitorm of a U. S. soldier entered the room, and as he was the first that had done so since the organization of the association, he was vociferously applauded. Mr. Flinn moved that the delegates elected to the Chicago be requested to meet at a specified time, so that it might be known who would and who would not go. Mr. John F. Ennis said he had been elected a delegate, but he begged leave to decline the proffered honor, as he was elected against his wishes and consent, and when he was not in

Mr. J. D. Hoover said he hoped the gentleman would not be excused. Mr. Ennis said he did not intend to go to the Chicago Convention and hang around its doors as a beggar knocking for admission. He thought he could do more good by staying at home and directing documents. He pledged himself, however, to support the nominee at Chicago, whoever he might be. [Applause.] Mr. Hoever claimed that there would be no trouble as to the admission of delegates from this District.

Mr. D.J. Snow said he had had conversations with prominent members of Congress, and he was satisfied the delegates would be promptly admitted if for no other reason than this delegation would be the only representatives of the old Jacksonian Democracy, as a member of General Jackson's cabinet was at the head of it. [Applause.] Mr. Ennis was excused. Mr. Snow then offered a series of resolutions setting forth that the salvation of the country depended now upon the Democratic party, and that success would be best secured by a post-ponement of the Chicago Convention, and herefore requesting the Democratic National Committee to postpone said Convention until September 17th.

Mr. Snow said his reasons for offering and urging these resolutions were several; one of which was that the Administration—or Government, as it was now called—had lately made a flank movement and changed their landigham in Ohio. We all know there is a split in the Republican party, and the organ of Mr. Lincoln's kitchen cabinet in this city has argued to the effect that the return of Mr. Vallandigham would cause divisions in the Democratic ranks, and the hope is expressed that a bad result may be obtained by throwing Vallandigham's sentiments as a firebrand into the Chicago Convention. The speaker argued that there was an understanding between Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Vallandigham's friends that the latter should remain in Ohio in order to distract the Democracy; but the speaker did not believe Mr. V. would lend himself to any such nefarious purpose. If, however, the convention met on the 4th of July, Mr. Vallandig-

Another reason for postponement was that the Republican party had already been di-yided, and he (the speaker) believed a policy would be developed in the management of the Republican campaign which would give success to the Democracy. But the great object was a harmonious action of all the elements opposed to the present Administration, and this could be best effected by a postponement of the convention. There was no hope for the Union except by the united action of all Democrats, and a delay in a nomination would best and Mr. Lincoln.

Mr. Aiken .- Then if that is so. and Mr. Vallandigham is in collusion with Mr. Lincoln. he is a traitor to the Democratic party. [Applause.] Mr. Snow desired to explain. He did not desired that he should return, in order that the Democracy might be divided. Mr. Aiken did not think Mr. Lincoln wanted Vallandigham back, and he further did not believe that Vallandigham's views would have any influence in the Chicago convention, and to turn up. The democracy are now ready for the issue, and desired a candidate. By a postponement many people might go off to one or other of the candidates already in nomination, and, besides, if the subject of a nomination is

Mr. Thomas B. Florence spoke in favor of a postponement of the Convention, and in the course of his remarks said that the gentleman last up, had an undoubted right to say Mr. Vallandigham or any other man was a traitor, but that did not make them such. Applause. Mr. Aikens explained that he did not say Mr. V. was a traitor, but that if he had acted in collusion with Mr. Lincoln he was a traitor to the Democratic party. Some one here suggested that proably the persons who had made much of the line of argument relative to a collusion between Mr. Vallandigham and Lincoln, had probably been reading certain articles in the New York Herald of Saturday, and got their cue from that paper

Mr. Florence then went into a defence of Mr. Vallandigham. He knew him well, and believed there was not a more conscientious or honest patriot in this country than Mr. V. [loud applause,] and he (Mr. F.) would not permit any one to say that Mr. C. L. V. was a traitor. [More loud applause.] He (V) was a martyr for his union sentiments, [applause,] and because he loved the perpetuity of the Union better than his life. [Renewed applause.] Mr. Florence proceeded to say he V.) felt as much devotion for his country as any one, and he would not for a moment stand in the way of the Constitutional Union party. The Republican party was now divided and

est each other up. He (the speaker) believed that ninety-nine onehundredths; yes, nine hundred and ninety-nine one-thousandths of the masses of the loyal people were trembling with fear lest the democracy should not postpone the nomination. Six weeks of a sharp and vigorous campaign was all that was necessary to secure a victory. By that time a union of all opposition elements could be secured. He (Mr. F.) did not care what a man's antecedents were, and did not question what any man was before this campaign, and he (Mr. F.) was ready to fraternize in close affiliation with any one who feels it to be his duty to save the Constitution and the tration. [Loud applause, and cries "That's Fremont."] Mr. Florence further argued in favor of a postponement, and the question was then taken and the resolutions of Mr. Snow were adopted, Mr. Aiken voting in the negative. An effort was made to reconsider the vote

Mr. Fred. A. Aiken (of Vermont) said he was opposed to the adoption of the resolution, and was surprised at the gentleman's (Mr. Snow's) remarks. He wanted to know if there was a collusion between Mr. Vallandigham Mr. Snow said he thought probably there he did not believe that convention would endorse Mr. Vallandigham's sentiments and Mr. Aiken then proceeded to argue against the postponement of the convention at Chicago. He said Mr. Lincoln was on one plat-form and Mr. Fremont on another, and the democratic people now wanted a candidate; and if the nomination is put off, it will look as though the party were waiting for something postponed, Mr. Lincoln would in the meantime place provost marshals in all doubtful districts, and would give out fat contracts, and at the November election the democracy would be nowhere.
